Preface

If you are reading this then you are probably related to a member of the Kennedy family of Tacoma. You may have heard that they came from Scotland. But how did they end up in Tacoma?

Also, did you know that William Kennedy left the mines of Scotland, married a widow in Illinois, homesteaded 320 acres in South Dakota, ran for State Auditor of South Dakota on the Prohibition Party ticket, started a Free Methodist church, and retired in the Queen Anne neighborhood of Seattle?

Do you know the “Little House on the Prairie” books by Laura Ingalls Wilder? Laura Ingalls Wilder’s father and her future husband Almanzo both started homesteading in South Dakota in 1879. That is the exact same year that William Kennedy started his homestead in South Dakota. And William Kennedy was less than 100 miles away from them!

This book walks backwards in time, from 1950 back to 1860 and traces Wallace Kennedy of Tacoma back to his ancestors in Scotland. This allows the reader to start with familiar names and slowly dive into the unknown past. If you prefer to read in chronological order then simply start from the last chapter.

Are you wondering about the title, “An important Situation”? It will become clear in Section 9.4.

Everything in this book is taken from original sources and newspaper articles. Unfortunately we don’t have any written first-hand accounts. Sadly we also don’t have any photographs of William Kennedy, nor of William and Emma together. Please let me know if you have any of those.

Do you want to see the full family tree online? Go to FamilySearch.org (it’s free) and search for the person with ID L83D-CSV. That will take you to Wallace H. Kennedy and from there you can browse all his ancestors. I recommend Family Search over places like Ancestry.com or MyHeritage.com because it is free and it is a single, global tree.

The newspaper articles in this book are from newspapers.com.

If you have any information, documents or pictures that should be included here please share them with me at johannes.grad@gmail.com or text me at (408) 250-8622.

Chapter 1

The 1950s - Tacoma, WA

Table 1.1: 1950 Census for Tacoma, WA. Taken April 4, 1950.

Address	Name	Age	Seeking work	Has Work	Job	Industry
3614 E J St	Kennedy, Mabel G	54	Yes	No	Waitress	Restaurants
	—, Wallace H.	24	No	No
	—, Robert A.	23	No	No
	—, William G.	20			Cuts paper	Life insurers

We begin our journey in 1950. Sadly, Mabel’s husband Wallace has already passed away. In the 1950 census Mabel is listed as the head of the house, but without a job, looking for waitressing work. Only Bill seems to be working.

1.1 The Kids are Moving Out

Lorne had already gotten married and moved out. He was working as a baker.

Doris will graduate from high school in June 1950 and get married in August that year.

Bob will graduate from College of Puget Sound’s pre-dental program in 1950 (today the school is called University of Puget Sound). And in 1953 he would marry Ann Redkey in Seattle and start a family of his own.

1.2 The Korean War “Doctors Draft”

In 1950 there was a special “Doctor Draft” for medical professionals to help in the Korean war. When Bob graduated from UW he was required to fill out a “special registration” for that draft.

2.1 Death of Wallace's Mother Emma (1940)

Wallace's mother Emma lived till age 90 and passed away on December 10, 1940. It is hard to imagine what her life must have been like. She had two husbands and gave birth to 13 children. Her first child was born when she was 16, and her last child, Wallace, when she was 47.

She rests at Mount Pleasant cemetery in Seattle, in a grave with her mother Samantha and her husband William.

The cemetery is still in operation and can be visited. The address is Queen Anne, 700 W Raye St, Seattle, WA 98119. The exact GPS location of the graves can be found on findagrave.com.

2.2 Death of Wallace (1943)

The 1940 census was the last time husband Wallace would be listed. Sadly he would pass away in 1943 sometime after he had a stroke. He had travelled to Grants Pass Oregon, where his sister lived, and passed away 32 days after arriving there. He also rests at Mount Pleasant cemetery in Seattle, a few rows away from the grave of his parents.

The cause of death is described on the death certificate:

Bronchial pneumonia (terminal)
 Nephritis [inflammation of the kidneys]
 Encephalitis due to cerebral hemorrhage [inflammation of the brain due to a brain bleed (stroke)]

2.3 High School Years

The kids attended Lincoln High School in Tacoma.

- For Wally I could only find yearbook entry for his Sophomore year in 1942. He was enlisted in the war in December 1943, before he could finish his senior year.
- Bob entered the Navy in January 1945 but is listed with the 1945 senior class in the yearbook. There is one more picture of him with the “Stage Crew” club.
- Lorne graduated in 1947
- Bill graduated in 1948
- Doris graduated in 1950

Stagemen Work Miracles

From behind the oak door labeled "stage room" comes Lincoln's stage crew armed with paint, setting, props, electric cords, and all things that have to do with the preparation of a stage for a school production. The Lincoln stage crew is a hard-working and talented group of artists, working in the mediums of lights, scenery, sounds, and effects. Their work is to create delusions.

Our stage, in the past year, has gone through amazing changes. From a trim newspaper office, which was the background for the senior class play, to the deck of a seventeenth century ship, which was one of the scenes of the all-school musical, the crew has consistently attained the desired delusions.

Dances also take much of the time of the stage crew, for it is through their knowledge of lighting-effects that Lincolnites are able to imagine themselves in anything from "Abe's Barn" to "Neptune's Gardens".

Under the guidance of Lloyd Hague and Bob Neudorfer, adviser and foreman respectively, the crew has done much to relieve the monotony of many lives. For this their only compensation comes in murmurs of admiration of some one of their projects by an appreciative audience.

2.4 World War II

Wally was enlisted on Dec. 11, 1943, the day before his father passed away. According to his army record he had only completed 3 years of High School. Wally later stated on his 1948 draft card that he served in the army from Jan 3, 1944 - May 18, 1946. He came under enemy fire in Europe on February 24, 1945. He suffered shrapnel wounds in the shoulder, leg and wrist. According to his 1948 draft card he was a member of the 102nd Infantry Division (the "Ozarks"). According to the internet the day before he was injured the 102nd crossed the Roer River in northern Germany and was approaching Mönchengladbach.

Bob served in the Navy from Jan 3, 1945 - May 17, 1946. He joined during his senior year in High School. This is also stated on his yearbook entry. For unknown reasons he did not fill out his registration card until June 1946. He was an excellent typist and was assigned to Ream Field in San Diego according to his Korean war registration card.

2.5 World War II Draft Registration

Even at age 44 husband Wallace had to fill out a draft registration for WWII, after he had already been drafted for WWI. He was born in April 1897, and the cut-off was February 1897. On his draft card he lists an employer, so maybe at the time he did not have his own private practice. The employer is given as “Dr. L. Whetstone” and the address as “302 So. 13th, Tacoma”. This probably refers to “Dr. L. S. Whetstone”, a prominent dentist in Tacoma at the time who frequently took out large advertisements in the newspaper. His address in the newspaper is given as “13th and Broadway, across from Sears, Roebuck”, which matches the address that Wallace had listed.

Lorne registered in June 1946, one day after turning 18, while a student at Lincoln High. He was required to register because the mandatory draft order was in place until early 1947.

Bill turned 18 after the draft ended, so we don't have a card for him.

2.6 Cold War Draft of 1948

In the summer of 1948 the cold war led the government to start a special peace-time draft. In Tacoma, all men between the ages of 18 and 25 had to register at the Tacoma armory. The draft was by year of birth, and all of Mabel's sons fell squarely into that age range.

Year of Birth	Days to register	Mabel's Son
1924	Sept. 2-3, 1948
1925	Sept. 4-7, 1948	Wally
1926	Sept. 8-9, 1948	Bob
1927	Sept. 10-11, 1948
1928	Sept. 13-14, 1948	Lorne
1929	Sept. 15-16, 1948	Bill

Here is a Tacoma News Tribune frontpage newspaper article from Tuesday, August 1948 recapping the details of the draft:

Tacomans Flock To Register for the Draft

"Friday" came to Tacoma again Monday with 25-year-olds flocking to registration centers as wheels of the nation's draft machine once more began turning.

In Tacoma as across the nation, it was the first step in America's plan to build up its armed forces with a peacetime draft. Actually, only a fraction of the millions who register will be drafted, but Uncle Sam does want a census of draft-age men.

According to estimates from military leaders, only about one out of every 42 men will be tapped for a 21-month stretch in the services.

Most Are Veterans

A large percentage of those who registered Monday were veterans and hence will not be called. All youths 18-25 must register, regardless of wartime service, however.

Tacoma registration centers are in the State Armory and at draft headquarters, Room 231-234, Provident building. The 25-year-olds registered Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, men born in 1923 will sign up. The schedule then goes on like this:

Men born in 1924 register Sept. 2-3; 1925, register Sept. 4 or 7; 1926, Sept. 8-9; 1927 Sept. 10-11; 1928, Sept. 13-14; 1929, Sept. 15-16; if born in 1930 before Sept. 19, sign up Sept. 17-18.

Much Waiting Due

Draft officials have explained that a minimum of 60 days will be needed between the date of the first draft call and actual inductions. This would mean the earliest that peacetime draftees will be in uniform will be Nov. 2, and any delay of the selective service machinery in getting under way could prolong the interval.

Registration in Tacoma was taking only about 10 minutes. First in line at the Armory was Gordon K. Iverson of 1711 So. J, while first at the Provident building was Clifford V. Benboe of 1516 So. 52nd.

Carolinas Await Blow

HATTERAS, N. C., Aug. 30.—P —North Carolinians battered down along the coast today for a big blow expected to hit tonight.

Hurricane warnings were displayed from here to Wilmington as a weather bureau advisory placed the center of the tropical hurricane about 250 miles south of here and moving north-northwest or north at 10 to 12 miles an hour.

Storm warnings were displayed as far north as the Virginia capes and as far south as Charleston. The Miami weather bureau, however, said the danger south of Wilmington "seems to be diminishing."

Present indications are, the bureau said, that the center will pass over or very near Cape Hatteras

Chapter 3

The 1930s - Seattle, WA

Table 3.1: 1930 Census for Seattle, WA. Taken April 10, 1930. Address was 2023 2nd Ave N. House was listed as “Rented”, monthly rent “$20”.

Name	Age	Born	Father	Mother	Occupation	Industry
Kennedy, Wallace H.	32	S. Dakota	Scotland	United States	Dentist	Own office
—, Mabel G	33	WA	Vermont	Austria	none
—, Wallace H.	4	WA	S Dakota	WA	none
—, Robert A.	3	WA	S Dakota	WA	none
—, Lorne	1	WA	S Dakota	WA	none
—, William G.	9/12	WA	S Dakota	WA	none

In 1930 the family still lived in the Queen Anne neighborhood of Seattle, presumably because many of Wallace’s family members lived there.

Marilyn had not yet been born, so there were only the 4 boys. Wally was the oldest at 4 and Bill the youngest at 9 months.

According to Redfin the house is 1,410 sq ft, 2 bd, 1 ba and was built in 1905.

3.1 Wallace and Mabel Buy Their Tacoma Home

Wallace's mother Emma already lived in Tacoma in 1930, according to the 1930 census. That might be one reason why they decided to move there.

Wallace and Mabel closed on their Tacoma home on October 14, 1937 as can be seen from the recorded deed.

According to Redfin the house is 1,080 sq ft, 3 bd, 1 ba and was built in 1907.

The legal description on the deed matches the modern description of 3614 East J Street, which is “McKinley Park Addition Lots 7 & 8 Block 16”.

Interestingly, the deed is a Quit Claim Deed, not a Warranty Deed as one would expect for a typical home sale. This could indicate that the previous owner Seifert was in danger of losing the home and Wallace and Mabel took over the home and its mortgage from them “as is”.

Unfortunately it seems that Wallace and Mabel were also at risk of losing the house. During the great depression Wallace probably had steady work, but many clients were probably unable to pay on time, or tried to barter instead of paying cash. We can find a mortgage extension document from the “Home Owners’ Loan Corporation (HOLC)”, which was a 1933 New Deal government agency created to help people keep their homes. The HOLC stepped in and refinanced their mortgage to a monthly payment of just $10. This was half as much as they paid in rent in Seattle in the 1920s.

This mortgage extension document was recorded on May 9, 1938. The recording date appears to be much later than the actual document. The new mortgage must have been negotiated in 1937 already because the new, lower, payments started in January 1938.

The mortgage extension agreement copy is pretty hard to read. As best as I can tell, the new terms were:

The sum of EIGHT HUNDRED FIFTY FOUR AND 69/100ths ($854.69) DOLLARS

owing on said obligation as of the date of this instrument shall be paid in installments of TEN AND NO/100ths ($10.00) DOLLARS or more, per month. This first installment shall be due and payable on the 25th day of January, 1938, and thereafter the installment shall be due and payable on the 25th day of each month until said indebtedment is paid in full.

The entire unpaid balance of such obligation (including as such delinquent and unpaid interest) shall bear interest at the rate of 5 per cent per annum.

As we now know the plan worked and they were able to keep the house. Mabel kept ownership until she passed away in 1984 and Wally inherited it.

The 1920s - Seattle, WA

Table 4.1: 1920 Census for Seattle, WA. Taken January 10, 1920. Address was 2102 1st West. House was listed as “Owned”, with a mortgage.

Name	Relation	Age	Occupation	Industry
Kennedy, Emma	Head	69	none
—, Wallace H.	Son	22	Clerk	City-Lighting
—, Clarence	Son	30	Cashier	Steamship Company

Here we are in 1920, still in the Queen Anne neighborhood. Wallace lives with his mother Emma and one of his older brothers. His father William had died just a year earlier in 1919. They own the house, but it has a mortgage (this will become interesting in 1910).

According to Redfin the house was built in 1902. These days it is a duplex, each unit has 2 br.

4.1 Getting Married

Wallace and Mabel were married on Sept 28, 1924. The witnesses were Emma Kennedy, Wallace's mother and Myrtle Beier, Mabel's sister. Interestingly, Wallace's county was listed as "Portland, Ore" because he was already in dental school. At the time there was no dental school in Seattle, you had to go to Portland. They got the marriage license one day earlier, on the 27th. At the time there was no 3-day waiting period.

4.2 The Kids Arrive

While Wallace was still away in Oregon in dental school Wally arrived on Aug 11, 1925. Bob was born in 1926, just after Wallace passed the state board and got his license.

When Loren was born they couldn't decide between "Lorne" and "Grant". The birth certificate was changed multiple times. This seemed to cause so much confusion that both names ended up in the county birth register.

4.3 Wallace Becomes a Dentist

In 1926 Wallace passes the state board to become a dentist in Washington. According to the newspaper, he was one of 20 Seattle dentists to pass the exam.

In 1920 he was still working for City-Lighting, according to the census. His application says he spent 4 1/2 years in dental school. So he must have enrolled around 1921 or 1922.

At the time there was no dental school in all of Washington. The UW School of Dentistry wasn't established until 1945. The closest dental school was "North Pacific College" in Portland. In 1945 it merged into University of Oregon Medical School.

Chapter 5

The 1910s - Seattle, WA

5.1 The 1910 Census

Here the census entry for Wallace and his parents. Interesting tidbits: William and Emma stated that they had been married for 35 years. It was his first, and her second marriage. William stated that he arrived in the US in 1873 and is a naturalized citizen. They owned the house without mortgage.

Table 5.1: 1910 Census for Seattle, WA. Taken April 15, 1910. Address was 113 Lynn. House was listed as “Owned” and “free” (without mortgage).

Name	Relation	Age	Occupation	In School
Kennedy, William	Head	58	Retired
—, Emma	Wife	59	none
—, Jean	Daughter	22	none
—, Clarence	Son	20	none	Yes
—, Wallace	Son	13	none	Yes
Clark, Anna	Niece	16	none	Yes
—, Clarence	Nephew	13	none	Yes

William’s oldest son Alex was already married and living nearby in a house of his own at 312 Lynn. That house was also owned without mortgage. Here is his census entry.

Table 5.2: 1910 Census for Seattle, WA. Taken April 19, 1910. Address was 312 Lynn. House was listed as “Owned” and “free” (without mortgage).

Name	Relation	Age	Occupation	Industry
Kennedy, Alexander	Head	34	Book keeper	Ice Co.
—, Anna G.	Wife	30	none
—, William G.	Son	3	none

William’s son George W. was also married and living in his own house nearby at 113 McGraw St. That house was also owned without mortgage. His occupation and industry match his brother Alex, so they must have both been working at the Seattle Ice Company. They did not have kids, instead there were 2 boarders living with them according to the census. Here is his census entry.

Table 5.3: 1910 Census for Seattle, WA. Taken April 15, 1910. Address was 113 McGraw. House was listed as “Owned” and “free” (without mortgage).

Name	Relation	Age	Occupation	Industry
Kennedy, George W.	Head	27	Book keeper	Ice Co.
—, Bertha	Wife	26	none
Fouler, William	Boarder	9	none
Hotchman, L.W.	Boarder	22	Laborer	Building

William’s house was built in 1907 according to Redfin and Alex’s and George’s houses each in 1909. So it is likely that all three were the original owners.

5.2 William and Emma's Children

The Kennedy family seems to have done very well in South Dakota and moved to Seattle between 1905 and 1910.

William, and his sons Alex (born 1875) and George (born 1883) own big houses in the Queen Anne neighborhood without mortgage, according to the census. Below a summary of their nine surviving children:

1. Alex (born 1875) had married Geraldine in South Dakota in 1902. In 1910 they own the house at 312 Lynn in Queen Anne. He died in Seattle in 1938.
2. William (born 1879) had not moved with Emma and William to Seattle. By 1910 he was married and had a daughter in Jerauld County South Dakota.
3. Herbert (born 1881) had also not moved with Emma and William to Seattle. He had already left the nest in 1900 and was "working for his board" in South Dakota. By 1910 he was married with two children in South Dakota. He also lived in Jerauld County South Dakota, close to William.
4. George (born 1883) had married Bertha Starkey in Jerauld County South Dakota in 1908. We might assume they were originally living near William and Herbert. Possibly they changed their mind about South Dakota and decided to follow William and Emma to Seattle. Sadly, Bertha died in 1927 and George moved to Hemet, CA.
5. Susan (born 1887) married Hunter Heath in Spokane in 1916. Her marriage certificate gives her occupation as "Nurse". They also moved to Hemet, CA.
6. John (born 1892) married Elvina Johnson in 1914. He died in 1957.
7. Jean (born 1888) married Charles Hoffer in 1910. They moved to Grants Pass, Oregon. She is the sister who Wallace would visit just before he passed away.
8. Clarence (born 1889) married Agnes Bayersdorff in 1921 in Mt. Vernon. Sadly he died in 1933.
9. Wallace (born 1897) was the youngest and would marry Mabel and live in Tacoma.

5.3 Emma's Grandchildren Anna and Clarence

From the 1910 census we see that Anna and Clarence Clark are living with William and Emma. These are Emma's grandchildren of her daughter Caroline from her first marriage.

At age 14 Emma had already gotten married to a James Glasscock in Missouri (in fact only 2 days after her 14th birthday). They had 2 children: Rebecca and Caroline. Caroline's children Anna and Clarence were living in 1900 with their widowed father Henry in South Dakota near Emma and William. It seems the father and 2 children moved with Emma and William to Seattle.

It is not clear why Henry is not listed on the 1910 census together with his children. Maybe he was boarding elsewhere in the city. He is listed as Clarence's nearest relative on his 1918 WWI draft registration. And Clarence gives his father's address as 113 Lynn, which was William's house. So the father of Anna and Clarence must have remained close to Emma and William.

5.4 Seattle in 1910

Here we are in 1910 and Seattle is booming. The population almost doubled between 1900 and 1910. Seattle in 1910 looked very different from today: there were lots of hills downtown that were literally “washed away”. The Montlake cut, which connects Lake Washington with Lake Union and Puget Sound had not been built yet.

Figure 5.4: Image of the Denny Regrade in Seattle 1910. In the distance on the hill is Queen Anne high school where Wallace would graduate in 1917. Entire hills were washed away into Puget sound between 1908-1911.

5.5 Wallace at Queen Anne High School

Wallace attended Queen Anne High School and graduated in 1917. The school had only opened in 1908, so it was less than 10 years old when he graduated. From its location at the top of Queen Anne hill one has a marvelous view over the downtown area. In 1981 the school closed because of low enrollment and was converted to condos. Wallace’s picture can be found in the 1917 yearbook.

5.6 World War I

Wallace was drafted for World War I on June 5, 1918 at age 21. It is unknown if he served in the military, but there are no records to be found on Fold3.

His registration card lists his employer as “City Light Department” and his place of employment as “City Hall”. He was still living at home with his parents at 113 Lynn St.

He gives his father’s birthplace as “Brocksburn Scotland, Gr. Br.”. This is a crucial detail that will help us link his father William to his family back in Scotland later.

- 1 Name in full: Wallace Henry Kennedy, Age in yrs. 21
- 2 Home address: 113 Lynn St, Seattle, Wash
- 3 Date of birth: April 4, 1897
- 4 Where were you born: Chardale, Scotland, W.S.
- 5 I am: 1. A native of the United States, 2. A naturalized citizen, 3. An alien, 4. A person of unknown status. (Strike out those of which you are not.)
- 6 If not a citizen, of what Nation are you a citizen or subject?
- 7 Father's birthplace: Brocksburn Scotland, Gr. Br.
- 8 Name of employer: City Light Dept., Place of employment: City Hall
- 9 Name of nearest relative: Wm Kennedy (Father), Address of nearest relative: 113 Lynn St, Seattle, Wash
- 10 Race - White, Negro, Indian, Chinese, Japanese, Hawaiian, Filipino, Portuguese, or other race. (Strike out words not applicable.)

The registrant, Wallace Henry Kennedy, affirms that he has verified the above answers and that they are true. The form is dated June 5, 1918.

The right form is a 'REGISTRAR'S REPORT' for Wallace Henry Kennedy, Registration No. 12, Serial No. 149. It contains the following information:

- 1 Name: Wallace Henry Kennedy, Number: 12
- 2 Color of eyes: Blue, Color of hair: Dark brown
- 3 Has person lost arm, leg, hand, eye, or is he infirmly physically disabled (specify)? No

The registrar, Chris Johnson, certifies that the answers are true and that the registrant has read his own answers. The report is dated June 5, 1918, and signed by Chris Johnson. It includes a stamp from the Local Board for Division No. 4, City of Seattle, State of Washington, 333 ALASKA BUILDING, SEATTLE - WASHINGTON.

Emma’s grandchild Clarence was drafted the same day, June 5, 1918, and also aged 21. (Clarence and Wallace were the same age. Clarence was Emma’s grandchild from her first marriage, while Wallace was her last child with William.)

Clarence’s employer is “Seattle Construction and Drydock Company”, a major ship builder on Elliot bay. He gives is father as his nearest relative, and his address as the house of Emma and William. We don’t know if Clarence’s father really lived there, or that just means that Emma would be able to locate him if needed.

We have a registration card for Wallace's brother William who was married in South Dakota. But his card does not have any information about his parents.

5.7 Death of William Kennedy (1919)

Wallace's father William passed away on June 13, 1919. Unfortunately his obituary is rather short and does not reveal anything about his life. According to his death certificate he died of stomach cancer. One can imagine that settlers must have eaten large quantities of smoked, cured or salted foods during the long winters on the prairie. That led to stomach cancer being the leading cause of cancer in the early 20th century.

William rests at Mount Pleasant cemetery together with his wife Emma and her mother Samantha.

6.1 The 1905 South Dakota Census

We will deviate a little bit from our approach here. The Kennedys moved in the fall of 1900 to Wessington Springs, South Dakota. The 1900 census was taken just before they moved and showed them still at their previous location. So we will cover the 1900 census in the next chapter. We will dedicate this chapter to their time in Wessington Springs and the move to Seattle.

In 1905 there was a special census just in South Dakota. The government wanted to track how settlement of the west was progressing. It shows Emma and William's family living in Wessington Springs, South Dakota.

The census was taken on index cards. Here are their census responses combined into one table:

Table 6.1: 1905 South Dakota Census, Summary of Kennedy Family Index Cards

All family members listed Wessington Springs, Jerauld County, South Dakota as their location.

Their 9th child, William, was living on his own farm already, although the exact location is hard to read.

6.2 Retirement in Wessington Springs

Why did William and Emma leave their farm and retire in Wessington Springs? Possibly William and Emma were drawn to Wessington Springs because of education for their children. The Wessington Springs Seminary was founded there in 1887 and later renamed Wessington Springs Junior College. It was affiliated with the Free Methodist Church. The public schools at the time maybe only covered grades 1-8. Most of their children were old enough at the time that they might have been too old for the public school. So the seminary would have been ideal, because it offered a 4 year high school program as we know it today. Also, the time of their move seems to coincide with the railroad coming to Wessington Springs in 1903. Below is a description of Wessington Springs from 1904 which makes a compelling case for moving there.

Wessington Springs, the county seat, is one of the most beautifully located towns in the east half of the state. It nestles just above the foot of the hills with the ridge rising 300 feet behind, and affords a commanding view of the broad plain toward the east. Just back of town is a natural park with abundant shade, watered by the springs. The courthouse and school house are modest, but tasty buildings of wood. The Free Methodist society have a seminary here. Wessington Springs had, in 1900, a population of 320, and Alpena 153. These, with Lane, the new town on the Woonsocket extension of the Milwaukee railroad, constitute the towns of the county. G. W. A.

6.3 Buying the Hardware Store in Wessington Springs

In 1900 there are two sources reporting that William Kennedy purchased a hardware store from O. O. England. This also confirms that they moved to Wessington Springs from Parkston in the fall of 1900. Parkston, SD was the nearest town to their homestead.

But already in 1902 William sold the store again to W. H. Sutton. He bought it in November 1900 and sold it in January 1902. So he only had it a little over 1 year.

6.4 Farming in Wessington Springs

Even after they moved to Wessington Springs William seems to have been active in either farming or dealing with farm land.

There is a newspaper report in 1905 that mentions a large flax field of 100 acres owned by William Kennedy. The expected harvest could be worth quite a bit of money. The size and value of the crop might be the reason why the newspaper decided to report on it.

On May 10, 1904 we see an advertisement by William for a 600 acre farm and 320 acres of land. Possibly the 320 acres might refer to his original homestead in Hutchinson County which was two claims of 160 acres. This ad ran for multiple consecutive weeks.

By July 23 the text had been changed. Now his ad only listed 480 acres of land in Jerauld County. So maybe that means he sold his Hutchinson County land between May and July 1904?

6.5 Running for State Auditor

William Kennedy ran for State Auditor of South Dakota in the 1904 election. He was a member of the Prohibition Party. Many newspapers in the state reported the list of candidates, including William Kennedy. His location is given as Wessington Springs so we can be reasonably sure it is him.

He did not get elected, the candidate of the Republican party won by a wide margin. Unfortunately he did not even carry his home county.

Total election results, William Kennedy came in 4th out of 5:

1. J. F. Halladay (Republican): 69,064
2. M. M. Bennet (Democrat): 23,539
3. John Clancy (Socialist): 2,932
4. William Kennedy (Prohibition): 2,865
5. Charley Lowe (People's): 1,121

Election results in Jerauld County (where William Kennedy lived), William Kennedy came in 3rd out of 5:

1. J. F. Halladay (Republican): 554
2. M. M. Bennet (Democrat): 148
3. William Kennedy (Prohibition): 37
4. John Clancy (Socialist): 25
5. Charley Lowe (People's): 62

It is also interesting to add up the total number of votes. In all of Jerauld County only 826 votes were cast.

6.6 Prohibition and Temperance

Both William and Emma seem to have been active in the Prohibition movement against alcohol. The fight for prohibition culminated in 1919 with ratification of the 18th Amendment. Prohibition was not repealed until 1933 with the 21st Amendment.

William was a member of the Prohibition Party and as we saw earlier ran for state wide office. We can also find a letter of his that was published in the Argus-Leader newspaper in 1903. William is described as “a real estate dealer of Wessington Springs”. His letter is in favor of the anti-canteen law, which prohibited the sale of alcohol on military posts. It was passed in 1901 and by 1903 there was criticism that too many soldiers were buying alcohol off-site.

This might be the only text we hope to find that was written by William Kennedy himself. The newspaper image is a little hard to read, so here is the full text.

MR. KENNEDY'S PROTEST

Mr. William Kennedy a real estate dealer of Wessington Springs, and, as judged by this letter a man of evident sincerity, and deep convictions writes the Argus-Leader in protest against the proposed repeal of the anti-canteen law. Mr. Kennedy writes:

“To the Editor of the Argus-Leader: I notice in a recent issue of the Argus-Leader an article encouraging the restoration of the army canteen, and I hereby enter the protest which you expected: of course you expected it, and thank God there are a few people left yet to protest and denounce the ungodly, hellish, soul-destroying traffic. I read where large corporations are prohibiting the use of intoxicants either on or of [sic] duty and where the drinking of one glass subjects them to discharge. Isn't that awful to take away their liberty that way? But of course the poor soldier must be provided with his whiskey even if it does unfit him for duty and wreck his life and damn his soul. Mr. Editor, I would hate to advocate the use of anything on which God has pronounced a curse; and He says: 'Woe unto him who putteth the bottle to his neighbors lips.' God has said that no drunkard shall inherit the kingdom of heaven and yet you advocate that this government shall legalize a business that destroys men [sic] soul and body and banishes them for ever from the presence of God. You cannot afford, Mr. Editor, to advocate a business that destroys men's souls and bodies. I beg of you to consider these few lines and take your position as God would have you.”

The Argus-Leader prints this letter because it is [sic] expresses in a very vigorous way the honest opinion of a man who has deep convictions and who though he does a great injustice to the Argus-Leader and all of those who believe the present anti-canteen law is a mistake, is yet entitled to be heard.

6.7 The Free Methodist Church

William was involved in the founding of the First Free Methodist church in Wessington Springs in 1901. The Argus-Leader reported that he was one of the trustees listed on the articles of incorporation. A book on the history of Jerauld County confirms this.

In the fall of 1887, J. B. Freeland was appointed to the Wessington Springs circuit, which included Wessington Springs and Lyndale. In 1901 the Articles of Incorporation were signed by the Wessington Springs Society and B. F. Hubbard, Lester Knight and William Kennedy were elected as trustees. In 1902, J. B. Freeland, G. H. Burritt and B. F. Hubbard were elected as a committee to make plans for the location and erection of a church and parsonage. They found that the southeast corner of the Seminary campus would be made available for the church when the time came to build. J. H. Flower and W. W. Smith were added to the committee. The Committee submitted two plans, one building 30x50, the other 30x40 with a wing 16x24. The second plan was adopted. The estimated cost was $1,700.

6.9 Wessington Springs Public Schools

According to Alex's biography from 1927 he was principal of the public school from 1900 to 1905.

There is also a newspaper article from 1904 about his wife possibly as a substitute teacher in the public school.

6.10 Moving to Seattle

In 1908 William Kennedy obtained the deed to his house in Seattle. And in 1907 Susan graduated from the Seminary. So we might assume they moved between 1907 and 1908 from Wessington Springs to Seattle.

We can only speculate why they came to Seattle. Alexander had married Geraldine Heath. Her parents had already moved from North Dakota to Seattle's Queen Anne neighborhood. Maybe Geraldine wanted to be close to her parents and convinced Alex and his family to move.

Or maybe the quest for education for their children brought them to Seattle. Queen Anne high school opened in 1908. Emma and William had 4 more kids to put through High School. Maybe the free, new, big, beautiful 4-year public High School appealed to them.

The climate might also have been a factor. At this point they had endured over 25 South Dakota winters. The mild weather of the Pacific Northwest would have been a welcome change.

Below we see an image of the deed for 113 Lynn Street in Seattle. It is dated April 1st, 1908. The seller was David Foote. Below is a transcription of the deed:

Emma's mother Samantha passed away on April 7, 1909 in Seattle at age 87. The address is given as 113 Lynn, which was William and Emma's house. So we can assume that Samantha eventually joined them in Seattle after living in South Dakota. But we don't know if she lived there permanently of was just visiting.

She rests in Mount Pleasant cemetery in Seattle, together with Emma and William.

Chapter 7

The 1890s - Hutchinson County, SD

7.1 Homesteading

At this point in our story we are jumping to the homesteading world of rural South Dakota. William and Emma and their extended family were homesteading land here in the 1880s and 1890s.

What is homesteading? Homesteading was a government program to help settle the American West. Anyone over the age of 21 who was head of a household could make a claim for 160 acres of land. They had to live on the land for 5 years, dig a well, build a house and cultivate at least 20 acres. It was a modern program: even single women, formerly enslaved people and immigrants could participate (but not native Americans unfortunately). After 5 years, if their neighbors confirmed that they did these things, then they would own the land free and clear. They would be granted a “Land Patent”. The Bureau of Land Management has a website where anyone can easily look up these land patents. Later we will see images of William Kennedy’s land patents.

It all sounds romantic, but it was really brutally difficult. Only about half succeeded. There were many droughts, fires, grasshopper plagues and extreme winters. There were very few trees so lumber was very expensive. In the beginning most families had to make do with extremely primitive dwellings called “sod houses”. Or if they had a little hill they could dig into the hill and live in a “dug out”.

Also, even though the land was “free”, farmers needed to make substantial investments. They had to buy a special plow to break open the tough prairie soil. And they needed a team of oxen to pull the plow. Any supplies they needed had to be shipped in by railroad from the east. They had the land, and they had the sky - everything in between they had to provide. It is a way of life that we can’t even imagine today.

As we will see in our story, it did get easier when families teamed up. By living on adjacent homesteads families could share equipment and animals. It also helped with the isolation of living alone on 160 acres. This is what Emma and William did.

Also, Emma’s extended family started early, in 1879. This meant relatively good land in eastern South Dakota was still available. By 1900 it was much harder to find good land, and people had to keep claiming less ideal land further and further west and north. This could be another reason why William and Emma appear to have been successful.

Starr Township was known as Starr Township in 1889

Finally, Emma and William were fortunate enough that their first four children were boys and survived to adulthood. That gave them extra manpower to improve the land.

7.2 Starr Township

Emma and William lived in what was called “Starr” township, in Hutchinson County. A township is a 6 mile by 6 mile square area. It is further subdivided into 36 smaller squares called “Sections”, each with an area of 1 mile by 1 mile. Finally, a Section is divided again into 4 squares labeled NE, SE, SW, NW. So we typically see their location described as “Hutchinson County, Starr township, Section 31 NE and SE”. Each such quarter section is 160 acres.

In Figure 7.1 we see a beautiful summary of the homestead map in Starr township of Hutchinson County. We see the sections, and each section divided into 4 quarter. Starr township was at the northern most edge of Hutchinson County, so the last 6 sections are cut off by the County line.

7.3 The Extended Family of William and Emma in Starr Township

Now look in section 31 and see “Wm. Kennedy”: yes that is our William Kennedy. By 1889 he owned two quarters of a section, or 320 acres.

Now see adjacent to him are homesteads owned by the Winsor, Ralston, Clark, and Manwaring families. They were all related: Samantha Manwaring was Emma’s mother. Her daughters married Kennedys, Ralstons and Clarks, and the Ralston girls married Winsors. Between them they owned some or all of sections 31, 30, 29, 20 and 21. We can count about 11 quarter sections belonging to the extended family.

And on top of that, at the left edge of the map would be section 25 of the next township over and Samantha’s granddaughter’s husband had 2 quarter sections there. That brings us to a total of 13 quarter sections at 160 acres each, or 2080 acres!

7.4 The 1900 census

Sadly, the 1890 census was lost in a fire in the 1920s. So we’ll jump to the 1900 census instead. In the spring of 1900 William and Emma were still living on their homestead in Starr Township, Hutchinson County, so this should be a good enough approximation for the 1890s.

William's immigration year is still listed as 1873.

William and Emma are living with 8 of their children. Their son William had already moved out and was working in Jerauld County South Dakota.

7.5 Emma's Daughters From Her First Marriage

From her first marriage Emma had two daughters: Rebecca Ann (born 1866) and Caroline (born 1871). Keep in mind that Emma herself was only born in 1850.

Both of them had moved with William and Emma to South Dakota and were living with them in 1880. The older daughter, Rebecca Ann, married around 1882 and had 7 children. By 1900 the family had moved back to Illinois. Sadly Rebecca would die there in 1908.

As for the younger daughter, Caroline, she had 2 children with Henry Clark in South Dakota: Anna and Clarence. Sadly, Caroline herself died in 1900.

Below is the 1900 census entry for Caroline's husband Henry Clark and their 2 small children in nearby Mitchell. These are the same Anna and Clarence that are listed on the 1910 census as living with Emma and William in Seattle. Maybe Emma and William watched the two kids while he was working for the railroad.

7.6 Death of Emma's Sister Rebecca (1898)

Emma's younger sister, Rebecca (not to be confused with Emma's daughter Rebecca Ann), had married George Washington Ralston in Missouri in 1874. They had 14 children, 8 of whom survived. Tragically, Rebecca died in South Dakota in 1898, leaving behind 8 children between the ages of 4 and 22. Her obituary mentions "consumption", which was another word for Tuberculosis.

At the time of Rebecca's death her oldest child, age 22 then, was Samantha. In 1900 Samantha married Ray Martz and the couple took in Samantha's 7 siblings (the children of Rebecca). Below is the census entry from 1900, listing husband and wife Ray and Samantha Martz, and all 7 of Samantha's younger siblings. These were not Ray's biological children, so they are listed as "Brother in law" and "Sister in Law".

Ray and Samantha would later move to Seattle, have 3 children of their own, and then go on to San Francisco. Samantha Martz died in 1940 and rests in Colma.

Samantha's father, George Washington Ralston, also moved to Seattle, remarried and took in his youngest child Jesse.

7.7 Emma's Niece Downey Bell

Downey Bell was Emma's Niece, she was the daughter of Emma's sister Eliza. Downey's family homesteaded just to the west of William and Emma, across the county line in Douglas County. They moved there after the 1880 census, and the 1885 census for Douglas County was lost. So the 1900 census is the first time we have a record of them. She was married to Robert Sawyer. Note that at age 33 she had already been married for 18 years and her oldest child was 17 years old.

Downey's maiden name is Glascock, just like Emma's first husband. This is because Emma and her sister Eliza married two brothers, James Glascock and Downing Glascock.

7.8 Emma's Mother Samantha

Emma's mother Samantha seems to have been living in Hutchinson County near her daughters Emma and Rebecca. In 1898 Rebecca died, and in 1900 Emma moved to Wessington Springs. So in 1900 Samantha moved to Spearfish, South Dakota (also called the "Queen City") where two of her sons lived. Remember that Samantha was born in 1821, so she was already 79 years old at the time.

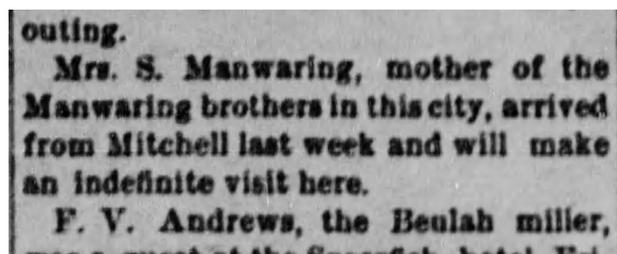

Figure 7.4: Samantha has moved to Spearfish - The Queen City Mail, July 7 1900

In 1901 she spent the summer back in Hutchinson County. Several mentions of this appear in the newspaper. First, in June 1901 the Hutchinson County reports that Samantha has arrived for a visit to Mrs. R. A. Sawyer. This is Downey Glascock, daughter of Samantha's daughter Eliza. Flensburg was a small town in Douglas County that doesn't exist anymore.

In September 1901 the same paper reports that she is leaving to return to Spearfish. She is accompanied by her granddaughter Martz. This would be Samantha, Rebecca's daughter. But her husband was M. R. Martz, so maybe A. E. Martz was a misprint.

The 1880s - Hutchinson County, SD

8.1 The 1880 Census

The 1880 census is a treasure because we can see the original 3 households: The Kennedys, the Ralstons and the Manwarings all living side by side. The census taker walked house to house, as can be seen in the dwelling numbers.

Table 8.1: 1880 Federal Census for South Dakota, Hutchinson County, Starr Township. June 11, 1880.

We can see Samantha in 1880 homesteading together with 4 of her children:

- James (born 1842): His wife had died in 1879. He would later remarry and move to Spearfish, SD.
- Emma (born 1850): Married to William Kennedy
- Rebecca (born 1855): Married to George Ralston.
- John (born 1858): He married in 1892 and moved to Spearfish.

Also of note, Emma's two daughters from her first marriage are living with her and William. Annie, whose real name was Rebecca Ann, would later start a family of her own in South Dakota and then move to Illinois. The other daughter, Carrie, or Caroline, would die in 1900 and William and Emma would bring her children Anna and Clarence to Seattle with them.

8.2 The 1885 Census

In 1885 there was a special Dakota Territory census. It shows us the largest extent of Emma and William's extended family in the area. Below is a summary table of the 1885 census. If the dwelling number is consecutive then we can assume they are neighbors.

8.3 William's First Land Patent

On January 26, 1887 William Kennedy was officially granted his first 160 acres by the government. He had followed all the rules and met all the requirements. The government issued a "Land Patent" which granted him full ownership over the land.

Here is a transcription of the text:

Whereas, There has been deposited in the General Land Office of the United States a Certificate of the Register of the Land Office at Yankton Dakota Territory, whereby it appears that, pursuant to the Act of Congress approved 20th May, 1862, "To secure Homesteads to actual Settlers on the Public Domain," and the acts supplemental thereto, the claim of William Kennedy has been established and duly consummated in conformity to law, for the south east quarter of section thirty one, in township one hundred north of range sixty one west of the Fifth Principal Meridian in Dakota Territory containing one hundred and sixty acres.

This is a traditional homestead grant. William and Emma lived on the land for 5 years, planted crops, dug a well and built a house.

Also of note, the year is 1887, before South Dakota became a state. That is why they refer to the "Dakota Territory".

If you look back at the map of Starr township in Figure 7.1, you see section 31 in the lower left corner. There are two quarters labelled "Wm Kennedy". His first land patent was for the "south east quarter", so that would be the lower one. Next we will see the land patent for the upper quarter.

8.4 William's Second Land Patent

On December 13, 1889 William Kennedy was officially granted his second 160 acres by the government. This one was slightly different, it was based on a different law. It was a "timber grant", where the homesteader had to plant a certain number of trees.

Originally the requirement was for 40 acres of trees. But in 1878 that was lowered to 10 acres of trees, because 40 acres turned out to be too hard. Even so, after 8 years settlers had to prove that they had 675 trees per acre. At 10 acres, that comes out to 6,750 trees. We can only admire the hard work and luck it took to keep those trees alive.

Another twist is that a tree claim did not require residency. I think this was a common strategy: A settler would claim 160 acres for a homestead and live on it, as required. Then they would claim another 160 acres nearby as a tree claim. They could live on the homestead and work both claims. If everything went well they would own the homestead after 5 years and the tree claim after 8 years. Apparently this is what William and Emma did, and the plan worked. The claimed in 1879, and by 1887 they owned 320 acres free and clear.

Here is a transcription:

Whereas there has been deposited in the General Land Office of the United States a CERTIFICATE of the Land Office at Yankton, Dakota Territory, whereby it appears that, pursuant to the Acts of Congress approved March 3, 1873, March 13m 1874 and June 14, 1878, "to encourage the growth of timber on the western plains," the claim of William Kennedy has been established and duly consummated in conformity to law for the North East quarter of Section thirty one in Township one hundred North of Range sixty one West of the Fifth Principal Meridian in Dakota Territory, containing one hundred and sixty acres.

8.5 William's Entries in the Tract Book

The government kept detailed records of all homestead and tree claims in so called "Tract Books". There is a line for each claim. When a claim failed, it was crossed out and the next homestead attempt was recorded below it.

Below is a picture of the tract book covering William Kennedy's claims. Both of his claims are in the same Section, so they are very close to each other, on the same page.

This table summarizes the entries for Section 31:

Table 8.3: Tract book entries for Section 31, Township 100, Range 61, Dakota Territory

Pre.41	SW	149.17	$186.46	Mary E Sawyer	10/29/1883	-

We can see a number of interesting facts:

- William was the first to arrive at this section and made the first claim. He made both of his claims the same day, April 17, 1879. It wasn't until 1882 that someone made another claim. Both of William's claims succeeded. His are the only entries for the NE and SE quarters. The homestead (SE) was officially his on March 12, 1885 and the tree claim (NE) was his on August 28, 1887. The certificate numbers in the tract book match the number on the land patents we saw earlier. The government had a long backlog in issuing land patents. That explains the delay of the certificate date listed in the tract book and when the final land patent was issued.
- The NW quarter was first claimed in 1882 by Joseph Furber, but the claim failed. The homestead went back to the government and was claimed by Sidney Winsor in 1883. Sidney Winsor was a relative of Emma. Their homestead succeeded and they were issued a final certificate in 1888.
- The SW quarter was actually not a homestead but a direct purchase. This is indicated by "Pre.41" or "Pre-emption act of 1841". One could directly buy the land from the government, for $1.25 per acre. Section 31 was a little narrow because of the county line, so the SW quarter is only 149.17 acres. At $1.25 per acre this brings the total cost to $186.46. This matches the amount recorded in the tract book. There is no certificate issued, because there was no need to prove anything. They owned the land outright. The other 3 quarters were claimed for $10, and then "proved up" by following the rules of homesteading and tree claims.

8.6 Samantha's Entries in the Tract Book

Emma's mother Samantha was also a homesteader in Hutchinson County. According to the tract book, she made a tree claim in January 1882. Later, she made a homestead claim in December 1882. The final certificate was issued less than 3 years later, in June 1893. This is faster than the 5 year minimum, so we can assume they decided to pay for the land in cash rather than risk not being able to prove the homesteading requirements.

By 1883 she had relinquished the tree claim and it went to Theodore Emery. It took them another 10 years to prove up the claim and get the certificate.

8.7 Comparison to Laura Ingalls Wilder

The story of William and Emma is surprisingly similar to that of Laura Ingalls Wilder of the popular "Little House on the Prairie" books. All three, Laura's father, her future husband Almanzo, and William Kennedy started homesteading in South Dakota in 1879.

Almanzo and William both made two claims for adjacent quarter sections: one claim for a 160 acre homestead; and another claim for a 160 acre timber claim.

For unknown reasons William had more luck with his claims than Almanzo. William's trees seemed to make it, so he was able to prove his tree claim and get the land for free. Almanzo's tree claim failed and he had to pay $200 for the land outright. Laura Ingalls Wilder's book "The first 4 Years" includes details on their tree claim.

Below is a map of the De Smet area of South Dakota highlighting the homestead and tree claims of Almanzo Wilder. This is less than 100 miles north of William Kennedy's homestead!

The 1870s - Belleville, IL and Scotland

9.1 The 1870 Census in the US

Unfortunately we have not been able to find Emma in the 1870 census yet. We only have the entry of her mother and sister living as neighbors in Union Township Missouri.

Table 9.1: 1870 Census, Union Township, Missouri. Taken July 27, 1870.

Dwelling	Name	Age	Occupation	Value of Real Estate

105	Magee, Thomas	28	Farmer	-
	—, Eliza	28	Keeps Home
	—, Leroy	4
	—, Downy	3
	Manwaring Charles	21	Works Farm

Emma's father Charles had already passed away in 1860. Emma's mother Samantha is living alone with her 3 youngest children. Tragically, her son Frank would die later that year at age 17. Her youngest children Rebecca and John would move to South Dakota with her. Her older children, James and Emma had already moved out. The value of the farm is listed as $2000, a substantial sum.

Next door to Samantha live her daughter Eliza, Emma's older sister, and her son Charles, Emma's older brother. Eliza and Emma had married two brothers: Eliza had married Downing Glascock, and Emma had married James Glascock. Sadly, both brothers passed away young. So here Eliza is living with her second husband Thomas. Her daughter Downy was 3 at the time and would later marry Robert Sawyer and homestead close to William and Emma in South Dakota.

We don't know where Emma lived in 1870. Her husband James Glascock was the oldest son. So maybe he worked on his father's farm in Ralls County, Missouri. We know his brother Downing served in the Missouri Militia during the Civil war. He was discharged, so he did not die in the war itself. We have not been able to find anything about James serving in the civil war.

9.2 The 1871 Census in Scotland

In 1871 William was 19 years old and working in the mines as an Engine Keeper. He was the oldest son of Alexander and Susan Kennedy and living in Broxburn.

9.3 William's Parents in Scotland

In multiple census documents William listed his date of arrival in the US as 1873. In the census he lists his birthplace as Scotland on multiple occasions. In his son Wallace's WWI draft card it lists his father's birthplace as Broxburn, Scotland. William's death certificate states that his father was Alexander Kennedy and his mother Susan Neil, both from Scotland.

In his mother's death notice it is mentioned that his father Alexander was a mine manager.

KENNEDY.—At Rosebank, Broxburn, on the 17th inst. Susan Neil, in her seventy-first year, beloved wife of Alexander Kennedy, mine manager.—Funeral to Uphall Cemetery to-day (Friday), at 3 o'clock.—Friends, please accept this (the only) intimation and invitation.

William's father died on September 7, 1906 at age 79. His obituary mentions his career as a mine manager. He was an important man, because the obituary contains his picture. It also mentions that the stores in town closed for his funeral procession.

The Late Mr Alex. Kennedy, Broxburn.

A VETERAN MINE MANAGER.

Mr Alexander Kennedy, retired mine manager, Broxburn, whose portrait we give passed away at his residence at Rosebank Cottage, Station Road, last Friday morning after a very short illness. The deceased, who was manager of the local shale mines throughout their extensive development and the rapid growth of the Broxburn oil works during the past thirty or forty years, retired from the position fully a year ago, when a sketch of his career was published in the columns of the "Courier." He enjoyed fairly good health since his retirement, and during the past month (August) was holidaying at Rothesay, Ayr, and Kilmarnock. His concluding journey was a visit to a daughter in Bothwell from Monday till Wednesday of last week, and he returned home on the Wednesday evening by the 9.30 train. On his arrival here he complained of having felt a little indisposed while in the train, and he gradually became worse during the night, with the result that Dr Scott was called in. The doctor held out little hope for his recovery, and after two nights and one day's illness, Mr Kennedy passed peacefully away at seven o'clock on Friday morning. The funeral took place to Uphall Cemetery on Monday afternoon, and was one of the largest that has been seen in the district. The deceased was well known and highly respected, and as the cortege wended its way to the cemetery all the shops on the route were closed and many other tokens of respect shown. The local mines had been closed at mid-day, and among the mourners were several of the directors of Broxburn Oil Company, a large number of the miners, and the heads of other departments. The remains, encased in a beautiful oak coffin supplied by Mr M. M'Gavin, undertaker, were conveyed to their last resting-place in Mr G. Grant's coffin-car. A short service was conducted at the grave by Mr William Allan, of the Ebenezer Hall religious body, with which the deceased was identified. Mr Kennedy, who was in his 79th year, was predeceased by his wife seven or eight years ago, and leaves a family of two sons and five daughters, all married, of whom one daughter (Mrs Towe) resided with him at Rosebank Cottage, while one of the sons (Mr John Kennedy, a successful local merchant) resides in the neighbouring villa of Jessieville.

The deceased belonged to the west, and received his early training with Messrs Robert Addie & Sons, of Rosehall, at coal and ironstone mining. He was manager of that firm's ironstone pit at Airdrie immediately before he came to Broxburn forty years ago as mining manager to the late Mr Robert Bell, of Clifton Hall, the pioneer of shale mining in Broxburn. When the Broxburn Oil Company, Limited, took over the local oilworks from Mr Bell, upwards of twenty-eight years ago, they retained Mr Kennedy's services, and in the management of their extensive shalefield he has been most successful. When he first came to Broxburn the only source of supply was what was known as No. 2 Pit, the shaft of which was near Old Stewartfield Rows. Shortly thereafter, however, the very valuable "Broxburn shale" was discovered, and it was wrought by a system of open casting at North Greendykes, between Broxburn and Niddry. The opening up of other mines round the district followed, and the daily output of shale for Broxburn oilworks during Mr Kennedy's tenure of service increased from 200 to 1600 tons, while the products extended from only crude oil, as it was originally, to sulphate of ammonia, wax, crude, and various refined oils, all extracted from the shale. No doubt, in such a responsible position, with latterly something like 800 men under him in the different sections of so many mines, Mr Kennedy in his long period of management saw something of the disputes that are inevitable between employer and employee, the most outstanding being the great struggle of 1887, "the big strike" as it is called, which was a bitter experience for both the men and the employers. Since then the disputing factions have generally been willing to discuss matters of difference with a view to amicable settlement, and Mr Kennedy's frankness at these discussions has usually been the cause of the absence of local disputes of any magnitude between the company and their miners. The deceased during his residence in Broxburn also saw the village extend from a little hamlet of between 500 and 800 inhabitants to the large industrial community it now is with nearly 9000 of a population.

According to the probate record the final estate was valued at £1323. According to the internet, one British pound was about $4.85 in 1906. So the estate in dollars would have been around $6,400. This is about the amount William paid for his Seattle house in 1908. Of course we don't know how much, if anything, of the estate went to William.

The obituary lists the residence of William's parent as "Rosebank Cottage, Station Road". This could be the house at address 22 Station Road, which has "Rosebank Cottage" engraved on its entry way pillars. Below is a Streetview image and a zoomed in view of the entry pillars.

9.4 Farewell Dinner for William: An Important Situation

On July 19, 1873 the local Broxburn newspaper reported on a farewell dinner for William Kennedy. Seated next to him was Alex. Kennedy, manager (presumably his father). It lists William as working for Boghall Works, which was a local competitor to the firm where Alexander Kennedy worked. And a few years later the two companies would merge. We can't know for sure, but there is a good chance that this dinner was for our William Kennedy. If he did in fact leave Scotland that summer, at age 22, then he would arrive in the US in 1873 like he had stated on the census.

The article doesn't give a reason for his leaving, only this: “on the occasion of his leaving Boghall Works to fill an important situation in America”.

Will we ever find out what that important situation was? In 1873 he left and in 1875 he would marry a widow named Emma Glascock in Belleville, IL. But what happened between then?

Below is the full text of the article on the farewell dinner:

SUPPER AND PRESENTATION. — On Friday evening last upwards of thirty friends of Mr Wiliam Kennedy met in Boghall School for the purpose of entertaining him to supper on the occasion of his leaving Boghall Works to fill an important situation in America. The chair was occupied by Mr Peter Mungall, Boghall Store, supported on the right by the guest and Mr Alex. Kennedy, manager; on the left by Messrs Jenkins, Uphall, and Hagerty. Mr Robert Heaps discharged the duties of croupier: After enjoying a substantial supper, the cloth being cleared, the usual loyal toasts were duly honored. The Chairman then rose to propose the health of the guest of the evening, Mr Wm. Kennedy, and in the course of his remarks stated that they were all sorry at the loss of such an esteemed friend as Mr Kennedy, He is a young man that endears himself to all around him. I need say almost nothing as I am sure everyone present knows him thoroughly and can bear testimony to him being a young man of sobriety, energy, and perseverance, and his straight-forward and obliging disposition has made to him many intimate and dear friends, and we beg to assure him that he carries with him to his new sphere of labour our best wishes. I am also proud to see so many of his friends here to night to bid him farewell and to hope that there is a future before him of honorable toil where the sterling qualities of his head and heart are sure to be appreciated. Turning to him he said—It is my sincere wish and that of the whole company's that your life will be long and prosperous, and in the name of the employees of Boghall works and a few friends, allow me to present you with this purse which is well filled with soveiseigns [sic] as a mark of our respect. Mr Kennedy feelingly replied in appropriate terms and thanked his fellow workmen for the high compliment they had paid him and also their handsome present which was quite unlooked for on his part. Afterwards a few songs, &c., were indulged in by the company, dancing followed, and was kept up with great spirit till an early hour. The meeting was altogether of the most harmonious nature.

9.5 Marriage of William and Emma (1874)

William and Emma were married in West Belleville, Illinois, which is just across the state line from St. Louis, MO. West Belleville was a separate city from Belleville at the time, they were combined in 1882.

The date was October 22, 1874.

He was 23 years old, she was 24 years old.

It was her second marriage. So she is listed as Emaline Glascock in the marriage record. She had been married to James Glascock in 1864. So far I have not been able to find any documents about his death. From that first marriage she had two daughters: Rebecca Ann (born 1866) and Caroline (born 1871).

We know Belleville, IL was a major center for mining. By 1874 over 100 shaft mines were in operation. So it makes sense that William Kennedy, with his background in mining, would come here.

9.6 Marriage of William Kennedy's Parents

For completeness we want to include the record for the marriage of William's parents. Alexander Kennedy and Susan Neil married on December 4, 1848 in Bothwell parish, a village outside Glasgow.

The wedding entry is a little sparse. It only mentions "Both of this parish". And "3 days", which means the wedding plans were announced on 3 Sundays in a row in case anybody wanted to raise wedding for sure.

Figure 9.9: Bothwell Parish Church where Alexander Kennedy and Susan Neil were married in 1848

9.7 Birth of William's Father Alexander Kennedy

We did find a beautiful entry in the Glasgow church books for William's father. It is from the christening book of the Glasgow Old Parish Registers.

The entry on the page titled 1827 reads:

Kennedy: William Kennedy, Collier, & Marion Gaul, a law: Son Alexander, bo: 8th March, Wit: John Kennedy, & Alexander Williamson

The parents of Alexander Kennedy were William Kennedy and Marion Gaul. His father's job is listed as Collier, another word for coal miner. The statement "a law:" means the church considered the birth "lawful", i.e. the parents were married. "Wit:" stands for Witnesses.

10.1 The 1860 Census in the US

Here is the 1860 census in Missouri. Emma was 10 at the time.

The census was taken when Emma's father Charles Manwaring was still alive. Tragically, he would die shortly thereafter in December of 1860. His youngest son, William Manwaring would not be born until January 1861. As far as we know, Emma's mother would never remarry.

In 1861 William was 9 years old. His sisters Helen and Marion were still living at home then, by 1871 they had moved out.

We see that William had a baby brother Alexander, but we have no record of his surviving. By the 1871 census he was no longer listed.

Appendix A

Retirement of William's Father

Here is a very nice article that was published in the Lothian Courier on the occasion of William's father's retirement. He had a long history working for the local mines and rose to manager with 800 workers under him.

Retiral of a Veteran Mine Manager.

MR ALEXANDER KENNEDY, BROXBURN.

The above is a portrait of Mr Alexander Kennedy, of Rosebank Cottage, Station Road, Broxburn, who has managed the shale mines owned by the Broxburn Oil Company since their infancy, and has now, at the advanced age of 77 years, practically retired from active management. It is 38 years passed the 2nd of November since Mr Kennedy came to Broxburn as mining manager to the late Mr Robert Bell, of Clifton Hall, who was the first proprietor of Broxburn Oil Works. At that time the works were very small, practically the only product was crude oil; several smaller firms being engaged with the retorting process and manufacturing on the site of the now extensive Broxburn Oil Works, and all supplied with the shale by Mr Bell. The only source of supply was what was known as No. 2 Pit, the shaft of which was near Old Stewartfield Rews. The success of Broxburn as a shale mining centre was about to commence, however. The North Greendykes Mine, between Broxburn and Niddry, was opened about that time, and in this mine was discovered a shale of considerable value. It was known as

THE "BROXBURN SHALE."

and was undoubtedly the making of the Broxburn Works, being, as well as the most valuable shale yet discovered, particularly easy to work in the North Greendykes Mine, where it was found almost on the surface of the ground. It was got by a system of "open casting," a number of navvies being engaged digging away the clay off the top and baring the shale, which was then lifted out along the seam without the expense of "sinking" having had to be incurred. Young's Oil Company are presently working the same seam at Glen-devon, and the Broxburn Company are also working the "Broxburn Shale" again at Loaning Hill, a pit recently opened near Unhall, in connection with their Roman Camp Works. As yet there has been no other shale of such great value found in the district. Other mines gradually opened round about after the success of the North Greendykes venture, and the extent of the progress made in shale mining at Broxburn may be known by the fact that at that time the output per day from these two mines—at Old Stewartfield and North Greendykes—was about 200 tons, while now there are 1600 tons of shale brought up for consumption per day from the company's various mines, and the products now include sulphate of ammonia, crude oil, wax, and various refined oils, all extracted from the shale. When Mr Kennedy came here, 38 years ago, there was

ONLY ONE SLATED HOUSE IN BROX-

ONLY ONE SLATED HOUSE IN BROXBURN

—a little cottage where the Cardross Hotel now stands in Greendykes Road. All the other houses were thatched or red tiled, and what is now a large industrial community of nearly 9000 of a population, was then a little hamlet of between 500 and 800 inhabitants. Mr Kennedy originally belonged to the West, and received most of his training with Messrs Robert Addie & Sons, of Rosehall, at coal and ironstone mining. He was manager of that firm's ironstone pit at Aurdie immediately before he came to Broxburn. With the opening up of the additional mines we have referred to after he came to this district, Mr Kennedy gained a valuable experience of shale mining, and when the Broxburn Oil Company, Limited, took over the local oil-works from Mr Bell, upwards of 27 years ago, they retained his services as mine manager for the whole of the mines under their charge. It is safe to affirm that no shale mines in the history of the oil trade in Scotland have, on the whole, been better managed than those of the Broxburn Oil Company, under the able and experienced direction of Mr Kennedy. The Broxburn Company has undoubtedly been in the history of the oil trade, and it has been one of the most prosperous industrial concerns in the world. The credit of this happy state of matters, of course, has various sources, and only last week we quoted a eulogy in favour of Mr N. M. Henderson, of The Lodge, Broxburn, to whom the Broxburn Company are under heavy obligations for the excellent way he has managed the works since the formation of the company, and for his retort patent, which has been adopted with eminently satisfactory results. The purpose of the present article, however, is to deal principally with the company's underground work under the management of Mr Kennedy, but it is necessary to make passing reference to the accompanying development of the works and retorts for the consumption of the increased quantity of shale brought from the bowels of the earth, and it has to be mentioned that about fifteen years ago the company, finding their mining operations extending at such a rate, opened additional works at Roman Camp for the working of the shale brought from their mines in the Drumsholeland district, the most valuable product from that shale being sulphate of ammonia. All these mines have also been under the supervision of Mr Kennedy, who carries with him into his retirement the good wishes of the general body of the shale miners throughout the district. No doubt, in such a responsible position, with something like 800 men under him in the different sections of so many mines, he has in that long period of management seen several of the disputes that are inevitable between employer and employee, and will be remembered throughout the shale area, and beyond it. That was undoubtedly the fiercest battle that has raged in the shale field between workmen and employers, and to this day it is spoken of in the district with a shudder as "the big strike." The men who remained from their work and resided in the company's houses were, with their wives and children, turned out of home and shelter, and they had wooden huts and tents erected, and they had wooden huts and tents erected at Old Stewartfield and lived there, preferring the cold and hunger to a return to work on the masters' terms. The strike lasted for twenty-two weeks, and it was a bitter experience, both for the men and their employers. That both the disputing factions benefited from the experience may be admitted, and since then the company and the Shale Association have generally been willing to discuss matters of difference with a view to amicable settlement. Mr Kennedy's frankness at these discussions has usually been the cause of the absence of local disputes between the company and their miners, and although a lock-out threatened the district about eighteen months ago, a repetition of "the big strike" was happily averted by the parties agreeing to refer the dispute to arbitration. Mr Kennedy still enjoys fair health, considering his age, and we are sure all our readers will cordially wish him a long continuance of it in his well-earned retirement.

THE MOST PROSPEROUS

Alex M. Kennedy (1875-1938)

Alex Kennedy was the oldest son of William and Emma, and the older brother of Wallace by 22 years. He was married in 1902 to Geraldine Heath of North Dakota. They were married there on Christmas Day 1902 before the Kennedy family moved to Seattle.

He appears to have been very successful in Seattle. He rose to be manager of the Seattle Ice Company and a trustee of Seattle Pacific College (now called Seattle Pacific University).

Alex and Geraldine are resting at Mount Pleasant cemetery in Seattle's Queen Anne neighborhood. The grave is close to that of his brother Wallace, and just a few rows away from the headstone of his parents.

TWO TRUSTEES ARE INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

The faculty and student body, together with many other friends, were greatly distressed recently in learning about the automobile accident in which Mr. Wells Gwinn and Mr. Alex Kennedy were seriously injured.

They were on their way to Eastern Washington for a few days after the fall board meeting. It seems that some mechanical defect developed which locked one of the wheels of Mr. Gwinn's car. This threw his car into the path of a large car coming at high speed in the opposite direction.

Those who have observed the wreckage feel that it was only providential that their lives were saved. They and their families have our deepest sympathy.

Auto Victims Making Rapid Recoveries

Messrs. Gwinn and Kennedy are making satisfactory progress toward recovery. Both trustees of the college were in an auto accident four weeks ago.

They wish to express their sincere appreciation to the students and faculty members for their kindness and interest in them.

Last week Mr. Kennedy left for San Antonio, Texas, to attend a convention. While there he intends to visit Miss Miriam Marston, a former student of S.P.C.

Public Land Survey System

Today when you want to receive a visitor you give them your address. But what would you do in 1880 if you lived on a homestead in South Dakota? There are no addresses, not even roads.

This is where the government used the “Township” grid: This was a grid of squares 6 miles by 6 miles in size. The entire American West was covered by this grid, like an XY coordinate system. The X coordinate was referred to as the “Range”, and the Y coordinate was the “Range”. So if somebody gave you their Township and Range then you know which square of the grid they live in. This means you know they are somewhere inside that specific 6 mile by 6 mile area. (Technically, for Townships you need to know if they are South or North, and for Ranges you need to know if they are East or West, but in South Dakota all Townships are North and all Ranges are West so we will ignore that detail.)

This was not fine-grain enough, they needed to divide it up further. A 6 mile by 6 mile area covers 36 square miles. So they called each 1 mile by 1 mile square a “Section”. The sections are numbered from 1 to 36. So if someone gives you their Township, Range and Section then you know where they are to within 1 mile.

The standard homestead claim was for a quarter of a section, which is 160 acres. So each 1 mile by 1 mile section would be divided into 4 homesteads. To identify each quarter of a section they used the compass directions: NE, SE, SW and NW.

For example, looking at Figure C.1 we see an example of Township 2S, Range 3W, Section 14 NE. In the upper right is the Township/Range grid. In the center we zoom into the grid of 36 Sections. And in the lower left we see how a section was divided up into quarters and even finer than that. The upper right part of section 14 shows a traditional homestead of a quarter section, here Section 14 NE. In the upper left we see a quarter section further subdivided four times, into 40 acres each. And other subdivisions were also possible.

Coming now back to Emma and William, their homestead was in Township 100, Range 61, Section 31, NE and SE. This tells us already that they were successful enough to claim not just one but two homesteads.
